PRESIDENT'S REPORT FOR 1915

GIRARD COLLEGE, December 31, 1915.

To the Board of Directors of City Trusts:

Another calendar year has drawn to a close, and it becomes my pleasant duty to transmit to your Honorable Body a report on the several branches of work in Girard College. The year has been one of gratifying progress in every branch of the service. There have been no untoward instances in the internal management of the Institution, or in the Institution's relation to its constituency or to the broader public. Officers and teachers have been faithful and devoted in the discharge of their several duties, and steadily Girard College advances to a higher degree of efficiency.

As investigation is made into the home conditions of applicants for admission into the College, and as we have knowledge of the chances of many of these boys, we can but be impressed with the wisdom of Stephen Girard in providing that those who were without opportunity, or had limited opportunity, should have an opportunity furnished them. The two events of sending a group of boys out of the College and receiving a group into the Institution are closely related in time, and the contrast between the appearance, bearing and seeming prospect of those taken in and of the confident, manly, self-reliant bearing of the group sent out, gives heart and hope to those who are in the work of the Institution.

During the past year the will of Stephen Girard has served as a sort of school text-book for the study of our older boys, and they have been much impressed, as those of us who are officially responsible cannot fail to be, by the wisdom of the plans of the Founder. It was clearly his intention to have his Institution contribute to the up-building of a high order of manhood.

The list of subjects which he set forth for the curriculum of the College, and the character of the employment to which he suggested the boys should be apprenticed, alike indicate that the ideal of Girard College should be training for life and development of manhood. There is an ideal for an Institution which is even more exalted than high scholarship, viz., the production of self-reliant men of good character, who will be able to take their places and discharge their full duty in the work of the world. This ideal of the production of an all-around manhood is the fortunate heritage of Girard College. To the realization of that ideal we have set ourselves with renewed vigor during the past year; to its larger fulfilment, we go forward in a confident hope.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The most interesting and significant recent developments of American education have been in provisions made for training during the period of adolescence. In addition to the diversified courses which have made a larger appeal to children of this age, and have increased the interest and rendered more obvious the advantage of secondary education, there has come the extension of the period of special education downward, through what is familiarly called the "Junior High School." Schools of this type, which begin secondary studies two years earlier than they are usually begun, have already been inaugurated in several parts of the country, among the most conspicuous examples of which are Evansville, Indiana, and Rochester, New York.

Quite twenty years ago, President Eliot made an argument against the conventional grammar school course, showing that it was too long and too barren to render the largest service to the young people for whom it was planned. Various public schools modified the grammar school course, in some cases shortening it to seven years instead of eight, and others introducing new subject-matter for instruction. Three years ago Girard College changed the emphasis between elementary and secondary education by providing for a four-year high school course and a seven-year elementary course, and while this has made small graduating classes, the plan has now been worked out and the whole College adjusted to the re-arrangement. Our experience of three years indicates the advantage of beginning secondary school work earlier and we are now prepared to make further advance in the same direction.

Just at the close of the year now being reviewed, on the recommendation of the Faculty of the High School, the Committee on Instruction voted to establish a five-year High School course, and a six-year Elementary School course, the same to become operative when the High School enters into the possession of the new building, and at that time a suggested curriculum for the five-year High School was approved and is presented below.

One familiar with European educational development, either in England or on the Continent, need not be told the advantages of beginning the study of foreign language and of algebra, as well as certain forms of science, at an earlier age than these are generally begun in American high schools. The flexibility of the vocal cords, the formative period of the mind, the more retentive memory—all point to the age of eleven or twelve as a favorable time to begin a study of the subjects above suggested, and indeed, in many European schools they are begun as early as nine or ten.

The theory on which the Junior High School has been suggested for American education is what is known as a "six and six division," meaning a six-year period in the Elementary School, and six years in the Secondary School, the latter to be subdivided into a three-year Junior High School and a three-year Senior High School. The age of eighteen, at which under the Girard will, boys must leave the College, makes a twelve-year period rather too long. Boys who were admitted below grade, or fell below grade in the progress of their school work here, would not be able to graduate. We can, however, with fair success, manage a six-year Elementary and five-year High School course, and the plan to embody eleven years has therefore been adopted.

Observation on school organization may well raise the question whether many schools and subdivisions are advisable. The great value of the gymnasium in the German system is from a nine-year curriculum in which there is continuity of effort and definiteness of purpose. The transfer from one school unit to another is always attended by a loss of momentum and an inertia which it takes time to overcome. It is quite probable that definiteness of purpose and a simplified organization under the plan proposed for Girard College may accomplish an educational result commensurate with what would be possible, even with an additional year, when the time is broken up among numerous schools.

Already the changes in the High School of the College have worked a pretty complete revolution in the educational spirit and atmosphere of the Institution. The improved opportunities for work in the new High School Building, the revised plan of organization and the new curriculum will, we believe, work an even larger change in the future.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

The Elementary Schools of the College have improved during the year. More careful supervision in all branches of the work has given teachers the aid which makes better work possible. The several supervisors of physical training, drawing and manual arts, and vocal music, as well as the services of the relieving teachers and assistant supervisors, and the supervising principal—all have contributed to put the work on a better basis.

Miss Ethel M. Davie, who had served faithfully for seven years as relieving teacher and assistant supervisor, resigned in September to accept an appointment in the schools of Atlantic City. For the place left vacant by this resignation the Board promoted Miss Jane Peoples, who has been a teacher in the College for twenty-five years. Miss Peoples knows the College and its needs thoroughly. She has been untiring in her devotion, and has great skill as a teacher. Not only was her promotion well merited from the considerations of personal deserving, but it was fortunate for the College that we could utilize the splendid abilities of Miss Peoples in an enlarged sphere of usefulness.

The Supervising Principal of the Elementary Schools and his teachers have continued the revision of the curriculum in various subjects, and substantial progress has been made in the important matter of working out a scheme of studies suited to the conditions in Girard College. Among the notable achievements of the year in the Elementary Schools has been the completion of the memory selection scheme for the first four grades, the printing of the pamphlets, and the carrying of this plan into effective operation. A list of the selections approved and printed is presented below.

In accordance with the plan, selections committed from the first term will be reviewed in each succeeding term, and it is the plan to continue this method of instruction from the first grade through the High School. Thus, by the time a boy has finished the High School in Girard College, he will have committed to memory thirty-five to forty literary selections of high merit, and as these are carefully drilled from year to year, there is a probability that they will have become so fixed in memory that they will never be forgotten. This is invaluable in a boy's education. One important aspect of this case is the ease with which our boys are learning to commit to memory long extracts, parts in plays and the like. In some cases the feats of memory are a little short of prodigious.

The Elementary School pupils have developed a good deal of power of participation in public appearances, which has been evidenced in the individual class-rooms, and when, in special cases during the year, the pupils in two class-rooms have furnished an entertainment in the College Chapel as a part of the Morning Assembly exercises.

Among the gratifying results of the year in the Elementary Schools has been the work with backward pupils, in the special effort to bring boys up to grade, and to make possible the graduation of a larger number. This is sure to be a constant problem to Girard College, due to the retardation of pupils when they are received.

Closely related to other musical work of the Institution, and in a sense fundamental to it, are the training in vocal music in the grades, and the congregational singing in the Chapel. This consists, in the first place, of training the ear, and then of training the natural voice. By means of a violin the Director of Vocal Music renders the musical sounds, requiring the pupils to recognize and reproduce them. A supervisor of considerable experience, who visited the school during the year, wrote after such visit as follows: "There was not a room I visited in which there was not the greatest interest shown and the boys were sorry when the music period was over. I believe the music at Girard College is going to stand at the head. Mr. Scales is helping the boys to find their real voices and music expressed in that way makes a boy eager to sing and to sing the best music." During the year the College was visited by the Director of Vocal Music of Cornell University, who spoke in high praise of the methods in use and the results secured. In no particular is this matter better evidenced than in week-day and Sunday Chapel singing. During the past year a choir of one hundred and fifty voices has been trained which sings four-part music, and it has come to be the practice for this choir to furnish an anthem at each of the Sunday Chapel services. A glee club from the choir has favored us on numerous public occasions, and individuals, both of the older and younger boys, have developed the power to do solo numbers.

The most gratifying thing about music is the fundamental training of the ear, and the development of the natural singing voice. This is evidenced in a fine undertone, or background, in the mass singing, which is entirely free from the strident voice, or screeching effect, sometimes accompanying the singing of boys. The work which is now being done in the schools is basal for the work in the Chapel, and what has been done in the past year is only preliminary to what we believe will be a larger work in the future. Best of all, the singing is having a refining and elevating educational effect.

CHAPEL MANUAL.

The Manual of Worship for use in the services of the Girard College Chapel presents an interesting development. From the records it appears that this manual had been begun by the first President, Joel Jones, who was a man of great learning, particularly in the Greek and Hebrew languages. A Manual of Devotion was compiled by Dr. William H. Allen, and copyrighted in 1873. In his long and very valuable service as Chapel Speaker, and as Chairman of the Committee on Admission, Discipline and Discharge, to which Committee the supervision over the Chapel service was committed, Mr. Benjamin B. Comegys contributed to the evolution of the Chapel Manual. The Manual, which has been in use for nearly twenty years, was prepared by Mr. Comegys, he making use of the earlier work of Dr. Allen and other liturgies and books of worship. The Manual as thus prepared was approved by the Committee in May, 1897. It was revised in some minor parts by Dr. Winthrop D. Sheldon, Vice-president of the College, and as thus revised was approved by the Committee on Instruction in June, 1901, since which time no change has been made in the Manual.

The old Manual, as printed, gave the text of the hymns but no music, thus necessitating the boys to sing by rote in using these hymns. By present methods of instruction in the schools boys are taught to sing by note, and it seems desirable that the book used in the Chapel worship should have the musical scores printed in connection with the hymns, so that the boys may carry out in their Sunday singing the instruction they are given in their week-day school lessons. The necessity for this change suggests the opportunity of making some further revision in the Manual to give freshness and new interest. Even though the form in which the new material were recast were in no sense better than the preceding form, there would be new interest from having it somewhat changed. There is, too, the possibility that the long prayers and some other parts of the service could be somewhat abbreviated with profit. All of this led to the suggestion during the year that the Chapel Manual be revised.

ADAPTATION OF EDUCATION TO PUPILS.

The wide difference in interest and educational capabilities which may be observed in the children of a given family is multiplied many times over in such a school as Girard College. One of the most perplexing of the many problems with which our schools are confronted is the adaptation of instruction to the varying needs of boys. Boys who are of average grade, and who appear fairly uniform at admission, develop markedly different traits. Some have natural gifts for work with the hands, others seem unfitted for this sort of work, and within the broader classification as above suggested, there are varying peculiarities and capacities in doing either hand work or book work. By means of the Sloyd Department, to which all boys go when they reach the age of ten or eleven, a special class, to which particular boys are assigned for study and observation, the general work in our Mechanical School, to which all boys go at about twelve or thirteen, and the general work in book-keeping and business arithmetic required of all boys at about fourteen to fifteen years of age, and the more specialized instruction which comes later, either in the separate trades or looking to a commercial career, we are seeking to discover the natural bent of boys and to give them the best development along the line of their special aptitudes.

Boys who do not fit into the rather highly specialized plan above described are taken into an Elementary Industrial Class, if they have not reached the High School and are below sixteen years of age, and are given a year's grounding in practical English and Arithmetic and a considerable amount of time in the drawing room and in the shop, after which, if they are sufficiently developed, they are transferred into an Intermediate High School Class, from which they may be placed at positions as apprentices. The Intermediate High School furnishes a curriculum for two years and is designed to take the better grade boys out of the class mentioned above, or those boys who fail in the regular High School work, and give them opportunity to study English and Applied Mathematics for one-third of the school day, and to work at some specialized trade in the shops or about the grounds for two-thirds of the day.

These courses have now been standardized and are recognized as a definite part of the work of the College. For the successful accomplishment of the two years in the Intermediate High School, the Committee on Instruction has approved a formal certificate, stating what the boy has accomplished, and this he receives on leaving the Institution. One obvious result from these new courses has been the retaining of boys in the College for a longer period of time and giving them a better equipment for work after they go out.

Educational preparation for a vocation has been utilized in many departments of the College work. The Institution is a community in itself with most branches of the work which would be carried on in a community life, and we are able to realize from the practical work, in connection with the Intermediate High School Class, almost every variety of community service. Boys have been thus taught to work in the laundry, the bakery, the greenhouse, the engine room, as messengers and errand boys, office boys and junior clerks, and in many branches of the artisan trades. In caring for the working plant of the College, making repairs and supplying the numerous new articles, furniture, framing pictures and the like, there are splendid opportunities for the doing of practical tasks. This has extended during the past year to a considerable amount of printing. A conservative estimate of the value of the work done during the year just closing, by those best competent to judge, indicates that the boys in these several departments have supplied materials to the value of more than four thousand dollars. Among the recent activities in this direction has been the manufacture of a considerable amount of furniture and apparatus, which will be used in the new High School Building. So important has the practical work of the Mechanical School become that there has been established a separate appropriation for the supplying of all materials, in order that this repairing and construction work may be kept as a distinct branch of the College activities.

Boys who are being trained for practical work after they leave the Institution are much better prepared to undertake this work, if they have had experience in the doing of practical work while they are here. In the doing of practical work, however, our constant aim has been the welfare of the boy. Two ideals have in different places governed educational processes; one is the training of the boy without regard to the thing he is making; the other is the turning out of a product having a fixed value to the disregard of the boy. Neither of these seems sound when carried to an extreme. With the development of the boy as the objective, does not the employment of his time in the doing of practical work offer by far prospect of the largest return?

LIBRARY.

The Report of the Librarian for the year indicates that this branch of College activity has rendered useful service. As the work of the school becomes more advanced, the Library becomes increasingly valuable. The change in the Alumni Prize to an original declamation, and the institution of a new Alumni Prize Essay on "Thrift" have made a large demand on the Library by the boys. During the year another group of boys were extended library privileges. Heretofore only the boys from Sections A, B, C and D have been granted use of the general Library, the boys of the lower sections making use of the libraries in their respective section rooms. When the regulation limiting the Library to the four upper sections was made, those were all the boys that were in the High School Department, and it was believed that they were all who could profitably use a reference library, but in the extension of the High School curriculum and the holding of the boys for a later age, it seemed wise to extend the library privilege to four additional sections, so during the year the boys from E, F, G and H were given use of the Library to its capacity.

Of the appropriation of one thousand dollars for the maintenance of the Library, approximately six hundred and seventy dollars were expended for books, two hundred dollars for magazines, seventy dollars for miscellaneous supplies, and fifty-three dollars for binding.

The Librarian recommends that when the new High School Building is occupied, and the class-rooms on the first floor of the Main Building are vacated, a stack room be made available, and the books now stored in the Memorial Room be transferred to such room. In the rearrangements of the first floor of the Main Building, it seems desirable that the Girard effects should be given, if possible, display which would make them more impressive and better understood. Two of the four rooms on the first floor could be assigned for a Girard Museum, well arranged and under the supervision of a caretaker. If two of the rooms entirely distinct could be similarly assigned to the use of the Library, it would, I believe, result in less disturbance to the Library from the passing of visitors.

The Librarian's Report shows that books were added as follows:

COLLEGE BAND.

The Girard College Band suffered a great loss in 1915 from the death of C. Stanley Mackey. Mr. Mackey died suddenly on September 26th, after having completed four years of splendid service as head teacher of the Band. He was one of the first to point out the great possibilities for a band at Girard College and his vision and his experience, both as a boy in the Girard College Band and later as a band leader and musician, clearly pointed to him as the logical man to take charge of the band reorganization. When he came on duty in October of 1911, there were but about thirty boys in the band and the interest in the organization was at low ebb. From this Mr. Mackey built up a band of more than a hundred pieces, and at the time of his death there were the names of eighty boys on the waiting list, all of whom were anxious to be enrolled as band members. On the day of Mr. Mackey's funeral, I read a brief statement of appreciation of the man and his service, which was later printed and given quite a general distribution. Mr. Mackey was much loved by the boys of the College and his life and work left a lasting impression.

Following Mr. Mackey's death, the band instruction was carried creditably for the balance of the year by his assistant, but a new appointee was necessary, and after careful consideration of a large list of applicants the Board appointed Mr. George Otto Frey as Mr. Mackey's successor. Mr. Frey is a Girard College boy, who left the Institution in 1898. While in the College, Mr. Frey was a member of the Band, and for a time its captain. In his band membership, he was associated with Stanley Mackey, and they remained lifelong friends. Following Mr. Frey's leaving Girard College, he enlisted in the Fifth Cavalry Band of the United States Army and saw service in the Spanish-American War. He continued in the Cavalry Band for five years, after which he entered the United States Marine Band and remained a member of that organization for over ten years, during the last five of which he served as a soloist.

Mr. Frey is a versatile musician, having played on a number of instruments, both brass and string. In the various musical organizations with which he has been connected, he has performed on the alto horn, the trumpet, the tuba, slide trombone and euphonium, and in addition he has perfected himself on the bass viol and the violoncello and enjoys a reputation for his skill on these instruments.

In addition to this band experience and familiarity of instruments, Mr. Frey has studied the theory of music and musical composition and has himself composed a considerable number of pieces. A careful investigation into Mr. Frey's record only increased our admiration for his musical abilities and his character as a man, and our confidence in his qualifications for the position which we were called upon to fill. It seemed fortunate that this position in Girard College could be creditably filled by the appointment of another Girard College boy.

HOUSEHOLD.

The work of the Household Department continued during the year along lines well established. Mr. Townsend R. Wood and Mr. William L. Dawes, both of whom had served as Relieving Prefects in the Number Nine Building, retired during the early part of the year and a readjustment of the Staff was made necessary. Mr. William H. Hager was transferred from Section B to Number Nine Building, as was also Mr. Linford H. Moyer from Section L. Mr. Archibald Ralston was transferred from Section D to Section B and other changes and readjustments made to cover the work of the sections affected. On the whole it would appear that these changes have given the maximum of service from the Staff.

Two changes in the duties of the Household Officers make it possible to handle the boys more satisfactorily. The first was a regular arrangement that all household officers report for their respective sections immediately after supper on Sundays, and have charge of the sections on Sunday evenings, as is true on other evenings of the week. This regulation gives opportunities for service and a supervision over the work not possible under conditions when one-half of the household officers were not on duty on Sunday evenings.

The other change affects the vacation arrangements for Christmas and at Easter. One-half the Household Officers are on duty for one-half of each vacation. Thus a boy has always either his own section officer or the associate officer of his section, and it is possible for the boy to be in contact with his own personal effects, clothing, etc., and the boys live during the vacations in much smaller groups than was true when there were fewer officers in service. It is a pleasure to report that both of these changes have been accepted in the best of spirit by the officers themselves and there is unmistakable evidence of improvement resulting from the changes made.

Just at the close of the year, an important change was made in the privileges accorded the boys, they being granted permission to carry on conversation at the table, both in Number Seven and Number Eight dining-rooms. At the first there were some dangers of converting this liberty into license, but in the main the privilege has not been abused. The amount of disorder is not excessive and we have confidence that the experiment thus undertaken will prove satisfactory.

The innovation introduced during the past year, in part under the supervision of the schools, and in part under the Household, of taking groups of boys for three days' walking trips, has proved a pleasant diversion and the experience was so satisfactory that we shall hope to continue the same practice in the future.

SUMMER SCHOOL.

A Vacation School was maintained during July and August when more than half of the boys were away from the College. Conditions in Girard College are quite like those in large cities. It is estimated that in the great centres of population represented by Philadelphia, Chicago and New York, probably not more than twenty-five per cent. of the school children are enabled to go from their homes for the summer vacation. To provide for the large numbers who must remain at home, recreation centres and playgrounds and various forms of special schools have been established in all the larger cities. In several progressive communities regular school work is provided during the summer months, so that the children who have failed in the preceding term may have an opportunity of making up their failure or that those who are especially ambitious may shorten the time necessary to complete the school requirement.

A Vacation School of the amusement type has been maintained at Girard College for many years, but it has been only during the last two summers that any definite school work has been introduced of the sort provided during the regular sessions of the schools. The experiment which was conducted during 1914 proved so successful that the same work was continued on more extensive lines in 1915. More boys volunteered for last summer, and it was necessary to have the time of two instructors, and even they could not carry on the work satisfactorily. In 1915, for the first time, the wood-working shop of the Mechanical School was opened and Mr. Harry S. Lord served very satisfactorily as a teacher in charge of that shop. The boys took up the shop work eagerly and the experiment was so unquestioned a success that we shall hope for its continuance in succeeding years.

PLAYGROUND AND RECREATION.

In the President's report for 1913 playgrounds were considered at some length, and the suggestion was made that there be a more definite recognition of play and recreation in the College life, and to this end it was urged that there be more stimulation of, and supervision over, our play activities. The educational value of play is coming to be generally recognized, and a recent statement of Mr. Justice Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, is quite to the point: "I do not know of any better way to teach a boy to be honorable and straight than to give him a chance to play with his comrades. In the playground he learns without any suggestion of rebellion against instruction and precept and preaching. He learns it because he does not want anybody else to cheat him, and is 'down' on the boy who does not play fair; he will establish standards of conduct which we must maintain in the community and particularly in our great cities. If there is one thing that we need more than another it is the constant emphasis among our citizens of that spirit of fair play, that willingness to give and take, that generosity in defeat, and that lack of assertiveness in victory which we identify with true sport, and which is learned best of all in childhood on the playground."

During 1915 this matter received further consideration in a special report to the Committee on Household, in which it was urged that what the household life at Girard College needed was more ways in which to keep the boys active and interested, instead of attempting to hold them in restraint and seeking to repress their activity. This statement applies alike to organized games out-of-doors and to in-door recreation. Among other things there was recommended a larger use of the armory, full utilization of the swimming pool and the gymnasium in the new High School Building, increased services of the moving-picture machine, and various activities of the boys outside of the College in walking expeditions and competitive sports.

Obviously the activities suggested above could not come of themselves, and it was equally obvious that the head of the Household Department, with the numerous duties already devolving upon him, could not undertake supervision over these new activities, so that an additional officer to devote himself to playground and recreation life of the College seemed necessary. After due consideration an officer of this sort was approved, with the title of Assistant to the Supervising Prefect.

After this position had been created it took much patient searching to find a man who could meet its all-around requirements. Inquiry of numerous heads of physical training schools of the country brought several nominees, among others from the Head of Hemingway Gymnasium in Harvard University, who recommended Mr. William C. Sparks. Mr. Sparks was a student of Bowdoin College, in Maine, and later a graduate of the Summer School of Physical Education, of Harvard University. He had practical experience in two or three institutions, and was serving as the Director of Recreation at Norwood, Massachusetts, where he had, in the various activities of the community, work not unlike that which we wish to establish in Girard College. Mr. Sparks came on duty in August last, and has contributed a valuable element to the all-around life of the College. He has promoted competitive games most largely among the smaller boys, has stimulated competition with outside teams, and taken an active interest in furnishing a wholesome in-door diversion in the swimming pool, by the moving-picture machine, and to a less degree in the sections. As was expected, the more wholesome recreation has materially lessened the problems of discipline, and the number of boys needing chastisement has largely decreased during the past few months, as compared with the corresponding months of preceding years.

A great English private school made the proud boast that it had sufficient playground space, so that all who attended could be engaged in wholesome play at the same time. However desirable this might be as an ideal, it is not possible in Girard College as the Institution is at present quartered. With 1500 boys on our limited playground space, congestion is unavoidable, and there is need of an intelligent study of the problem of play, and a good deal of skill in introducing games that require but limited space, so that the boys may realize the maximum of advantage from their recreation. The divided group plan of organization, treated in another section of this report, has a vital bearing on the playground and recreation activities of Girard College.

DIVIDED GROUP PLAN.

In the annual report for 1914, both the Vice-president and myself drew the attention to the need for some modification in the daily routine at Girard College which would make it possible to utilize the grounds and buildings more fully and more satisfactorily than is true at the present time. In April, 1915, by the consent of the Committee on Instruction, I was privileged to visit schools in Cleveland, O.; Gary, Ind.; Chicago, Ill.; and St. Louis, Mo., making observations particularly along the line of the enlarged use of educational facilities. The time was spent at Gary most profitably, and while the Gary idea is not applicable in its entirety to such a place as Girard College, there is in it a wealth of suggestion for our needs. In brief, the Gary plan lengthens the school day and subdivides it into four parts as follows:

1. Recitation in a conventional classroom.
2. More formal instruction presented by means of lantern slides, moving picture films, and general lectures.
3. Shop instruction and industrial activity.
4. Playground and recreation activity.

Groups of boys are assigned to each of these functions at different hours of the day, and by interchanging of groups the four activities are carried on at the same time.

The wisdom of this plan for Girard College should be obvious. Instead of our limited playground space being occupied for brief intervals in the morning, at noon time, and in the late afternoon, and then so congested that satisfactory participation in games is next to impossible, the playgrounds would be occupied by smaller groups throughout the day; also the gymnasium and swimming pool could be, by the divided group plan, kept in operation continuously; similarly the lecture hall, the moving-picture machine, lantern, etc., could be worked to their limit of usefulness. But, perhaps, the most important gain from the suggested change of organization would be in the opportunities it would give for vocational instruction, and for the employment of boys in smaller groups in various forms of industrial activity about the Institution. In the attempt to treat all boys alike, there is an unavoidable vacuity in the daily life of those resident in Girard College. It has been impossible to carry on the industrial operations satisfactorily without taking boys in half classes from school. This we have been doing, but always with apologies to the regular teachers and to ourselves. When the organization of the College recognizes work as an essential element in the daily routine, and provides a time on the schedule when it is to be done, the idea of work will be impressed upon the boys' minds as an element in their education.

With the occupancy of the new High School Building in September, with the presence on the Staff of the Assistant to the Supervising Prefect, who was secured to direct playground and recreation activities, we have an opportune time to put this new plan to the test. Its application to the College will mean much difficulty in the administration, but I am firm in the conviction, after studying the matter for more than two years, that it will work, and I would regard its introduction a most promising forward step.

HEALTH OF THE COLLEGE.

Although there have been three deaths in the College during the year the general health has been good. The deaths, in every case, have been boys who had inherited weaknesses and low vitality, so that the most expert medical attention and careful nursing were unable to save them. Frequent bacteriological examinations of the milk and water supply, with good sanitation within the Institution, have kept us free from epidemics and any considerable amount of illness. During the late spring scarlet fever broke out and the cases continued well through the vacation period. There were not a large number of cases, but they kept recurring from time to time so that isolation was necessary. We were fortunate to have the disease kept well under control, there being for the year a total of but forty-one cases of scarlet fever. The Philadelphia Bureau of Health lent every aid to us in this emergency and approved of the methods practised for isolation and treatment. The comment of the Chief Medical Inspector of the Bureau after an examination was, "The situation at Girard College is being exceptionally well cared for."

The attending physicians for the ophthalmological and the ear, nose and throat work have familiarized themselves with the routine of the College and are serving acceptably in their respective departments. The several reports indicate an active year in treatment and operative work. The medical service has contributed to the desirable result of keeping the beds of the Infirmary empty and the boys at their regular tasks in the school. We should not omit to make record of the splendid results secured from the wise counsel and careful operative work of the Consulting Surgeon. The consultant in the department of practice has been called on repeatedly during the year, and his counsel gave an additional confidence in the treatment of grave cases. Dr. S. McCuen Smith was similarly called as consulting surgeon and operator in some cases of extreme gravity requiring the radical mastoid operation. All the boys recovered from this operation and all of them were benefited through its having been performed.

The Dental Department worked under some disabilities during the year from the change of staff, but before the year closed the new appointees had been trained to the routine of the work and matters are moving satisfactorily. The most important step of the year in the Dental work was the decision to introduce an X-ray machine for the making of examinations and the giving of diagnoses. As this report is being finished the machine has been installed and is serving a useful purpose in the furnishing of complete and trustworthy information concerning conditions about the roots of teeth being treated. A limited amount of this work has been possible heretofore, when it was necessary to send boys to a Röntgenologist in the city, but the ease with which the radiographs can be made here increases very much the possibilities for this work.

In conclusion under this head I must again express the great gratification which we all feel at the efficiency of the care of the health of the boys in Girard College. It would be difficult, indeed, to find a group of men more expert in or devoted to their respective branches of work than is true of the staff serving in the health department of this Institution. The results from this service can be best presented in a statement from the annual report of the Visiting Physician: A study of the report of the Department of Vital Statistics of Philadelphia for the year 1914, fine as this is, shows an average death-rate for the city, for the past five years, of 16.24 per 1000 inhabitants. The average for pupils of Girard College for the same time is one (1) death a year per 1000. Of the eight (8) deaths recorded for five years, one (1) was the result of an accident, five (5) had a tubercular parentage and two (2) had chronic heart disease.

ADMISSION AND DISCHARGE.

The work of admission and discharge has increased in value during the past year. Through the Superintendent and his assistant, acting as field agents, we have secured full information on all applicants for admission as to the financial status of their mothers or relatives, their school standing and progress, and their family history, so that when boys are presented there is trustworthy data for considering them. For the boys whose psychological and school examination leaves some doubt as to their ability to profit by attendance in the College, there is a further minute study of all the facts bearing on the case, and only after such study is the boy ever denied admission.

Increasingly during the year the office of Admission and Discharge has served as an intermediary between the boys now in the College and the homes from which they came. Counsel of various sorts has been given to the members of the boys' families, and through this office Girard College is a great agency for social service and uplift.

In no particular has the work of the College more improved in recent years than in the supervision given the boys who are leaving the Institution, the finding of employment for them, the securing of exact information as to boarding places and living conditions, and the exercising of a restraining and guiding hand over their conduct during their first years outside. Many prospective employers have been induced to visit the College, and observe the work in our Mechanical School and various other activities of the Institution, and after such observation the way has been opened for more favorable opportunities for the boys. Boys have also been moved from one position to another to great advantage, the vacancy made by such transfer usually being supplied by other College boys to the satisfaction of all concerned, and to the great profit of the boys. The Superintendent of Admission and Discharge is working in close coöperation with other departments of the College and his office is, in the best sense of the word, a vocational guidance bureau.

The Superintendent's classification of pupils admitted during 1915 as to physical and mental condition, age when admitted, offers suggestive information. From these figures it would appear that the boys received into the Institution are of quite average physical condition, and that the school standing and intellectual capacity, as evidenced by the psychological examination, are similarly average or better. In this list the figures of the boys who cannot graduate call for special mention. Under the school curriculum of the College there is one year of grace for a boy who comes exactly on grade and makes his regular promotions. For many boys received into the College there have earlier been insufficient educational opportunities, and as will appear from this and other lists, nearly fifty per cent. of the boys received cannot be graduated, if they could make regular promotion after being received. But a study of the figures makes them less formidable than would appear at first sight. Of the 79 above mentioned, 57 are less than two years below their normal grade, which means that by the making up of one year or less in their standing they become on grade. This can be done by completing two terms' work in certain grades of the Elementary School and by summer study, in which an increased number of boys engage. Many of them, however, are of limited ability, and the most that can be accomplished for them is a training in the Elementary Schools to about the Sixth Grade, and the preparation either in the Elementary Industrial Class or in the Intermediate High School Class, to become artisan tradesmen.

The number of discharges for the year has been below the normal, due probably to two causes. In the early part of the year the industrial conditions were unfavorable, holding back certain boys who naturally would have gone to employment earlier. During the year, the Elementary Industrial Class and the Intermediate High School Class have made an appeal which has retained boys longer in the Institution. In comparison to the figures of the Superintendent of Admission, it is interesting to know the ages at which the boys have left the College, and to compare the year just closing to 1910: In 1915 the number graduated was 27; in 1910 it was 29. In 1915 the number going out of the College from the High School was 56; in 1910 it was but 42. In 1915 the number leaving the College at sixteen years of age was 31; in 1910 it was 73. In 1915 the number of boys leaving the College because they were 18 years of age in advance of graduation was 21; in 1910 it was 7.

The figures just given indicate a marked change affecting the ages at which the boys leave the College. The tendency is to keep boys longer and give them a much better education than was true heretofore. Instead of boys going out because they have reached the age of fifteen or sixteen, with no special equipment for work, they are now given a longer time and a training to do some one thing which will make it possible for them to find a place, and to carve out for themselves a future heretofore impossible.

While we could have no knowledge, when the Intermediate High School Class and the Elementary Industrial Class were established, of future legislation affecting child labor, the establishment of these classes prepared the way to deal more effectively with the problem of placement of our boys when the new child labor law went into effect. As we recall practices before these classes were inaugurated, we may well speculate on the unfortunate situation in which we would have found ourselves had not these classes been in existence.

The richest reward which those connected with the College can have for their labor, is in the gratitude of the mothers and the boys themselves. Many letters of appreciation reach the Superintendent of Admission and the President's office, and it is with real pleasure that I present a copy of one of the letters shortly after a boy had left the Institution. This letter speaks volumes, not only in the services rendered to the particular boy, but in the effect which these services have had on the mother and the family from which the boy came.

October 30, 1915.

DR. CHEESMAN A. HERRICK,

Dear Sir:

Your letter to me September 27th regarding my son, _____ completing his course has remained unanswered until this time, partly through neglect and partly because I hardly knew just how to answer it.

To-day I received a letter from Mr. Witherbee telling me of _____'s position and the arrangements made with my brother for him to live there, all of which meets with my hearty approval.

I wish to acknowledge with heartfelt thanks all that has been done for my son. You have given him everything that he needs and an education which will fit him for a good position if he will do his part, and I sincerely hope he will.

You have not only helped him by your splendid Girard College, but you have helped me and his elder brother for whom I have been able to do more in an educational way than I could have done for two sons out of my earnings.

His brother, _____, is a student at the Academy, preparing for college and the ministry.

I merely tell you this that you may realize that the benefit derived from Girard College goes much further than to the boys themselves.

Hoping you will pardon my delay in answering your letter and will accept my grateful acknowledgment of the services you have rendered to my son and myself, I remain,

Very truly yours, _____.

The following table from the report of the Superintendent of Admission and Discharge shows the average time required to reach a boy's turn after his name has been placed on the waiting list, and indicates that this period has gradually lessened during the past few years, although it has again increased somewhat during the past year, due to the smaller number admitted.

The number on the waiting list on December 31st was 646, the largest total for any one year during the past decade with the exception of 1907, when there were 660 enrolled. There were 356 new applications registered during 1915, 154 of these being born outside the county of Philadelphia, 192 in the county of Philadelphia (14 in this latter group being born in the Old City), and 10 outside the State of Pennsylvania.

GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS.

Reference to the first report which I presented to your Honorable Body in 1910 will indicate a number of building improvements and suggested changes which, at that time, seemed desirable. Some of these have been accomplished, but others are still awaiting consideration. Improvement must, of necessity, come slowly, and real progress is the result of growth.

Obviously, the available space for new buildings within the College enclosure is about occupied. The completion of the High School Building will in no sense detract from the use or service of the ground within the enclosure, but rather makes possible a better use of the grounds than was formerly true. This same statement could probably be made for the erection of residences for the Executive Staff who must live in the Institution, in the unused space at the east end of the grounds. The completion of the High School Building goes far towards making what is in effect a College yard. The erection of a suitable building on the open space on the east would complete the buildings on three sides about such a yard, and would give an entirely different impression on the entrance into the College. Such residences would free the present Number One Building and make its adaptation possible for four families of older boys. I can but repeat the statements of my earlier reports that there is need for better housing and improved living conditions for the older boys. If seventy-five or eighty boys could be housed in the Number One Building in families, the size of the other sections occupying the present Number Two Building could be materially reduced so that not only would the boys quartered in Number One Building be benefited, but the others would be as well.

When the new toilet building is completed south of Number Nine Building, there will still be three toilets of the old type, the use of which all agree should be discontinued at the earliest possible moment. A new construction, near the Number Two Building, would make it possible to do away with two of these and there would yet remain desirable a further new toilet to take the place of one of the old type used by the small boys of the Number Seven Building.

One of the most troublesome questions with which we are confronted is the feeding of our boys and the care over them at meal times. With the present Number Eight dining-room, in which twelve hundred boys are served, it becomes quite impossible to introduce a desirable variation in the dietary or to serve food under satisfactory conditions. Questions of massing so many boys, marching them in and out, and supervision over them at the table, present difficult problems. As pointed out in earlier reports, some subdivision of this dining-room, such as a change to a number of smaller dining-rooms with more individual attention possible, is highly desirable. Reduced numbers in the large dining-room would also make possible much improvement.

Bound up with the question of the Number Eight dining-room is the care of the domestic employees of the Institution. At the present time our employees are quartered throughout the entire place, from the Number One Building to the extreme west end of Number Seven, and the top of Number Nine. They are living in individual rooms or colonized in larger rooms never intended for such uses and have not the comforts and the protection that would seem desirable. Our staff of domestic employees is large and is changing constantly. I feel that this aspect of our work ought to command the earnest consideration of the Board of Directors. It would seem possible to erect quarters for the domestic help above the dining-rooms of the Number Seven Building and the Number Eight Building and to furnish there satisfactory quarters which could be kept under the close supervision of the Matrons of the College who are resident in the two buildings. It would be possible also to build a dormitory outside the College enclosure, and possibly connected with it by a tunnel, in which all the domestic employees could be housed. The latter would possibly necessitate the services of a caretaker or a matron and might involve increased expense and some special problems in maintenance and administration.

The old part of the Number Seven Building of the College is still untouched. It was our thought that when the new extension was put on the west end of Number Seven it would serve as a model for the reconstruction of the old part of the Building. The new type of lavatories, the shower-baths, the enlarged section rooms and better sleeping quarters have made it possible to handle the two sections which are in the new unit more satisfactorily than the sections can be handled which are quartered in the old units. In the latter the boys must wash in tin basins and have not stands on which these can be placed. They are also required to bathe in bath-tubs, with but a limited number of tubs for thirty-two boys. The changes made in the newer unit and the improved facilities for lavatory and bath appointments throughout the Institution give stronger emphasis to the needed changes in the Number Seven Building. Changes of the sort desired in this building, however, will necessitate extensive interior alterations.

The Steward's Report for the year presents a summarized statement of alterations, improvements and repairs to buildings. This report indicates a marked improvement in the physical appointments for our work. An examination of the successive reports for the past five years indicates large expenditures in the directions indicated. This was made necessary from the fact that buildings had been in use for a long time, many of them for more than sixty years, and they were showing signs of deterioration. Furthermore, changes in methods of doing work, progress in sanitation, and the prevention of disease, had presented the necessity for better appointments. The interiors of many of our buildings have been so reconstructed as to make them almost new constructions. Fortunately, from the establishment of the Institution, the style of building has been substantial and durable in character, so that with the alteration of interiors there is the bringing of the buildings into satisfactory condition for good work.

What is likely the most important change of a decade in the College is the erection of a new High School Building, which was begun in 1913 and which nears completion as this report is being prepared. This building will afford modern and hitherto much-needed facilities for improved educational work, and, in addition, will give us useful supplements to appointments for recreation in the swimming pool and the new gymnasium.

Not the least important of the changes of the year has been in the re-equipment of the section rooms of Number Nine Building. Instead of four large tables hitherto used in this building, with ten boys assigned to each table, there have been introduced ten small tables each affording accommodations for four boys. This arrangement makes possible better living conditions, and a further regard for the individuality of the boy. Changes of the sort here recorded were introduced last year in the Number Seven Building, and it is our hope that they may be carried to the Number Eight Building, and that later we may find better methods for handling boys in the section rooms of larger boys.

Progress has continued during the year in the abandoning of needless and duplicating walks, the planting of vines and shrubbery about the buildings and against the walls, and in relieving the former somewhat cold impression of the great mass of the stone presented by the buildings themselves and the enclosing wall. These changes are evidencing greater attractiveness in the buildings and it seems not too much to say that the Girard College of the future may present not only a stately and imposing appearance, but that it may become architecturally and æsthetically more pleasing.

The Steward's Report for the year draws attention to the continuance of the policy of improving the trees about the College wall. In 1915, oriental plane trees were substituted for Carolina poplars on Ridge Avenue and on South College Avenue east of the lodge entrance.

The Steward also draws attention to the abandonment of the swimming pond at the southwest corner of the grounds and the filling of that space with cinders and clean dirt. This pond can well be spared with the bringing of the High School pool into use. The filling of the pond will largely increase the play space at the southwest corner of the grounds.

The Steward furnishes in detail information as to the subsistence cost for the year. The aggregate for 1915 was $194,518.91, being an increase of $5,585.41 over the total expenditure for the same purpose in the preceding year. The per capita expenditure for 1915 was $124.61 against a per capita expenditure of $121.42 for the preceding year. In the total above mentioned is included the cost of maintenance of the officers' and employees' tables. The per capita computation is based on 1561 boys as an average maintained during the year.

COUNTRY ESTABLISHMENT.

Not the least important of the matters claiming our attention is provision for the vacations of a large number of boys who remain under our care during the summer and a possible country branch of the College which could be carried on in connection with such an establishment. This matter was called to your attention in my first report and has been repeatedly mentioned since. Six to seven hundred boys remain at Girard College for the summer months. Some of these have been in the Institution year after year with no place to which to go. We are making better provision every year for the vacation of these boys and Girard College is not a bad place in which to spend a vacation. The regretful aspect of the present arrangement is that boys have no opportunity for change during the round year, and for successive years. New scenes and new conditions of life, even for two weeks, give a relief from the monotony of existence under fixed conditions, and would be welcomed as an eminently desirable relief.

Over and above the advantages already stated, an establishment in the country could be made to serve useful purposes as a branch of Girard College and would, I believe, contribute towards more nearly carrying out the original purposes of the founder. The codicil of the Girard will provided for the establishment of the Institution on a farm. In the list of employments to which boys, who were to be reared and educated, were to be apprenticed, agriculture was placed first. Certainly all suggestion of Girard College as a farm establishment has been lost and it may well be questioned whether we are educating and preparing boys for apprenticeship to agriculture.

A careful study of the Girard will, and observations on Mr. Girard's life, forces one to the conclusion that he had in mind the training of boys for the three common needs of his, and our time, namely, agriculture, the artisan trades and commercial callings. The College fairly meets the present-day demands for trained apprentices in the mechanical trades and business. It has done little towards meeting these demands for agriculture. Indeed, as I have earlier pointed out, we take many boys from the agricultural sections of the State and train them for city life, often so as to entirely unfit them for a return to the communities from which they come and the life to which they would seem properly destined.

ALUMNI INTEREST.

I report with appreciation the continued and increased interest in the College on the part of its Alumni. In no year during the time which I have been connected with Girard College have there been so many evidences of a close relation between the Alumni and the Institution. The annual address on Founder's Day was delivered by the President of the very active and useful Alumni organization, known as the "Early Eighties." The Early Eighties gave an out-of-door entertainment to the boys who were in the College during the summer, on July 28th, which was highly enjoyed by both the boys and the officers who were on duty. The same organization established three prizes, one of five dollars, one of three dollars, and one of two dollars for the three best essays on "Thrift," written by boys of the seventh grade school classes. The boys of these classes took an active interest in this competition, and the study which the preparation of the essays stimulated was of much service to them. The writing of the essays was also a splendid experience.

The General Alumni Prize was changed during the year from a gold watch for scholastic standing to first and second prizes to the two students who were adjudged as making the highest standing in an original declamation contest held early in December. This contest was open to all the members of the senior classes, and here again the competition was keen and the interest well sustained. It was the very general feeling in the College that the change in form of this prize was a means of extending the benefits of competition and promoting both essay writing and public speaking.

The Alumni Association of Western Pennsylvania has been reorganized and is taking a new interest in the College and its work. This association has offered a prize for points scored in athletic competition, which promises to be a stimulus for this branch of the work. The Northeast Alumni Association had an enthusiastic meeting in December at which the Vice-president and Superintendent of Admission and Discharge were in attendance. The General Alumni Association has, in no sense, abated its interest, the annual dinner of the Alumni on May 19th being largely attended.

"Steel and Garnet" has rendered excellent service to the College and Alumni interests. During the year the department of College News and Notes has increased in size and improved in quality. The older boys are now writing largely for "Steel and Garnet" on happenings in the College. This is proving a good experience for them and a very satisfactory method of getting all the news.

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS.

Numerous suggestions have been made in the preceding pages which, for purpose of definiteness, it may be well to summarize at the conclusion of the report:

1. We recommend most strongly that beginning in September next the College go on a new plan of organization and administration, termed divided group, which means a longer school day and the carrying on of recreation and industrial activities by different sections parallel with the school studies. This matter has been discussed at length with the different groups in the College and is well understood. Its adoption would, we believe, make possible far reaching and desirable changes in our educational régime.

2. We recommend that with the vacating of the Main Building there be changes in the interior arrangements of this Building. These changes affect the facilities for the Library and the Girard Museum. They should also be extended to the second, and possibly to the third, floor of the Building. The second floor might serve a useful end for recreation rooms, reading rooms, meeting rooms for groups of boys known as school clubs, and other like purposes.

3. The need of the College for facilities for vacation arrangements and for possible agricultural instruction is commended again to the attention of your Honorable Body.

4. I recommend the erection at the earliest possible moment of a building or buildings which will serve as residences for the President, the Vice-president, and the Supervising Prefect in the open space east of the present Number One Building, and the remodelling of the Number One Building to furnish facilities for four groups of older boys, organized and controlled by what is the present very general and commonly approved method of institution administration, viz., the cottage system.

5. There is pressing need for a change by subdividing the Number Eight dining-room or reducing the number of boys accommodated in that room, so that improved methods may be brought into use in the dietary and management of boys who are there provided for.

6. There is need for the remodelling of the older section of the Number Seven Building, introducing shower-baths, improved lavatory facilities and toilets, and the rearrangement of space so as to make possible larger and better ventilated section rooms, and the improvement of the schoolrooms and dormitories. In this remodelling, if an upper story or stories could be built over the dining-room, an assembly room might be furnished where the small boys of Number Seven could be gathered for entertainments suited to them, and for an occasional Chapel service designed or planned according to their needs.

7. Closely related to the changes suggested for Number Eight and Number Seven Buildings is the question of housing domestic employees. Upper floors of the buildings named might be utilized as quarters for the help, or an outside dormitory might be secured for the same purpose. I trust that we are of one mind, that the present method of housing female employees about the Institution is not desirable.

8. I suggest in conclusion that we continue the policy which has been followed the past three or four years, of further improvement in the grounds. There are still cases where asphalted drives and flagstone walks might be converted into grass plots. The College could be made more attractive by a further use of shrubbery and vines planted about the buildings and against the wall. In so fundamental a matter as the improvement of the grass and trees, there is still need for extending changes already begun.

As we look backward over the five and three-fourths years which it has been my high privilege to serve as President of Girard College, we shall find much encouragement in progress already made, but as we consider the present operations of the Institution and the changes required for an improved service in the future, we must be very conscious of the necessity which rests upon us of an intelligent and careful study of the needs of the College and wise and zealous action that these needs may be met as far as possible.

With renewed expressions of appreciation to you for the confidence placed in me and for your intelligent and devoted consideration of the many perplexing problems with which the College is confronted, I beg respectfully to submit this Annual Report.

Faithfully yours,

CHEESMAN A. HERRICK,

President.
